

Winners ENPHE Bachelor Thesis Award 2018

- 1st Prize: Jesse Peters: The effect of the chronic pain program 'ABAKUS' on work reintegration, pain and functional disability in chronic pain patients: a retrospective analysis (Hanze University of Applied Sciences, Groningen, The Netherlands)
- 2nd Prize: Antonio Malanda Callejo: Reliability of a smartphone app for detecting differences in static stability of the lower limb between football players with a history of anterior cruciate ligament tear and healthy players: a case-control study (University School Gimbernat, Cantabria, Spain)
- 3rd Prize: Dominique de Rochemont: Step to the beat: the effect of commercially available music on gait (pilot study), (University of applied Sciences Utrecht, The Netherlands)

Winners ENPHE Master Thesis Award 2018

- 1st Prize: Thomas Bilterys and Sofie Vermeir: Pain in breast cancer survivors: nociceptive, neuropathic or central sensitization (Free University Brussels, Belgium):
- 2nd Prize: Ellen Vanbaelen and Lise Van daele: Analysis of the immediate effect of Manual Pressure Technique on head pain in patients with migraine: a pilot study (University of Antwerp, Belgium)
- 3rd Prize: Elena Borja Lopez: Pilot study on the reliability of surface electromyography as a tool of assessment of spasticity and perception tool in muscle activation after the application of manual therapy (Escuelas Universitarias Gimbernat, Cantabria, Spain)