Title: Enactive and Person-Centered Approaches in Community-Based Physiotherapy Education: Rethinking Pain, Engagement, and Practice

How can physiotherapy educators empower students to address the real-world complexities of pain and rehabilitation in their communities? Join Dr. Peter Stilwell—renowned for his work on enactive and person-centered models of pain—for an inspiring keynote designed to inspire educators across Europe. Drawing on his research and experience, Dr. Stilwell will explore how community engagement, lived experience, and comprehensive reasoning can be an integrated part of physiotherapy education. This session will offer concrete strategies for integrating person-centered and community-based approaches into curricula, fostering reflective practice, and preparing students to meet the evolving needs of society.
